The Terrain Gallery presents the work of 10 artists in various styles and media—all showing the meaning of these great sentences from Eli Siegel's The Opposites Theory:

"Shapes widen and narrow; come to a point and curve; rise, fall—and these things we do too. The drama of colors and shapes and lines is humanity's drama. The intensification and muting of color in art go for one thing; and we wish that intensity and lessening go for one thing in us. How this can be, we mightily want to find out, and art can tell us."

Opening Wednesday, September 12, 6-8 PM • through November
